

This is usually the part of my rankings articles where I briefly discuss the previous week's Browns game. Since there was no Browns game this week (the last one they played was more meaningless than my 7th grade self pledging eternal devotion to a photo of Elle MacPherson while locked in the upstairs bathroom), I instead will foretell the future; I will channel the average Browns fan during Sunday's Titanic Contest with the Dolphins of Miami.

"What the... Why? Fuck! FUCK!!!! You gotta be fu... you gotta be kiddin' me! OH MY GOD. Why would you do that? Why? Who did you think you were throwing to? OH MY GOD. This team is WORSE THAN LAST YEAR! Jesus H Jehovah's Witness Mother Fucking Dude Ranch Dressing Olive Garden Son Of A Bitch! Awwww... fuck this, I'm [leaving/changing the channel/castrating myself so I never have to worry about having children who will have to watch this shit]."

Deny it if you will, you know it to be true. And it has everything to do with the perpetual reincarnation of this fella:

Hello, my name's Browns Front Office. And my mom told me that there are chores I haven't done yet. Like I don't have a starting quality 2nd Corner. Or Free Safety. I also haven't really dealt with the Guard position, or established any kind of depth at Tight End, or even bothered to open my Big Book of Punters and Kickers (my teachers keep telling me I'll need to know about them some day, but I think they're dumbasses - I'm gonna be a rock star, I don't knead to know nuthin'.)

I was gonna get off the couch and deal with all these stupid "things that grownups have to do", but then I got to the bonus level of Bad Piggies, so I just think you're gonna have to deal with 32 undrafted Free Agents and 86 players in either their first or second years (most taken after we put our draft tracker on "Auto").

Oh, and by the way, things will be different this year. I know it doesn't seem like we're doing anything differently - in fact, in many ways, worse - than our predecessors, but I told you that this is NOT business as usual!

Did Mike Holmgren ever promise you that?

What do you mean "he did"?

Well he didn't say anything about "sustainable success", did he?

Yeah, I know he promised that his "Five year plan" would do pretty much the same thing, but did he use the EXACT words "SUSTAINABLE SUCCESS"?

Didn't think so. Ka-Pow!

*Sustainable success could take longer than a five year plan, all rights reserved.

And now that I've shot my wad on that topic, here are my "thoughts" on the rest of the National Football League:
