

Nick Allburn is a handsome young fellow from North East, PA (basically Erie). One of his earliest memories is the purchase of his first Chief Wahoo cap.

Nick has undergraduate and master's degrees in business from Penn State (don't worry, he's a Buckeyes fan), and attended the Erie campus to avoid Jerry Sandusky. When he isn't writing about the Browns or Cavaliers for TheClevelandFan, Nick enjoys the finer things in life; reading from his collection of leather-bound books, distance running, triathlon, the occasional adult beverage, and Nintendo. Nick probably owns more Bernie Kosar jerseys than you do.

In addition to writing for TCF, Nick collaborates on a Cleveland sports blog located at <http://forecityfanatics.blogspot.com>