

Dave Kolonich grew up in Warren, OH and has recently migrated to the bluegrass of Lexington, KY. A life long Cleveland sports fan, he longs for the glory days of the Marty Ball era, which sadly is the pinnacle of his Cleveland sports experience.

He is a graduate of Youngstown State University and currently spends his days shaping the youth of America. Outside of the realm of sports, Dave is obsessed with history, politics, art, The Band, Mr. T and harassing Rich Swerbinsky.

He also writes for his own blog, Cleveland Reboot, which can be found at www.ClevelandReboot.com