

The Crystal Ball - December 12 Releases

It's been a rough couple months to be both a Browns fan and a movie fan ... as there has been little to get excited about with either. In this week's Crystal Ball, Mitch says to hang in there. January will bring us all of the Oscar worthy films, plus on TV, we'll have restarts on "24", "Lost", "Battlestar Galactica", and "Big Love". Not to mention that we'll finally be out of our misery when it comes to Browns' games. Mitch recaps all the week's releases at the theater and DVD in this week's piece.

I'm not really sure which part of me is in a bigger rut.

The Browns fan side of me, or the movie fan side. Because I haven't had jack to be excited about on either side since July.

No relief coming this week, either.

Just keep hanging on. January will bring us all of the Oscar worthy films, plus on TV, we'll have restarts on "24", "Lost", "Battlestar Galactica", and "Big Love". Not to mention that we'll finally be out of our misery when it comes to Browns' games.

News and Rumors

~ Lots of howling from the fanboys when they found out that "Batman: The Dark Knight"; only received one Golden Globe nomination; for Heath Ledger as best supporting actor for his role as The Joker. But don't give up hope for an Oscar Nomination for Best Picture. In the past 10 years, 10 of the 50 films nominated for the Oscar were not nominated for a Golden Globe in that category.

~ Now for my personal favorite so far in 2008, "Wall-E" was named best picture of the year by the prestigious Los Angeles Film Critics Association; the first time in the organization's 33 year history that an animated film received that award. Sean Penn was named Best Actor for "Milk", Sally Hawkins Best Actress for "Happy-Go-Lucky", and Danny Boyle for director for "Slumdog Millionaire".

~ Daniel Craig has shot down rumors that the next Bond film would be a third in a trilogy with "Casino Royale" and "Quantum of Solace", and that they'll go back to the old method of having totally independent storylines. Great move, as far as I'm concerned. Now that Bond's over his funk about Vesper Lind, it's time to move on.

~ I'm not sure which bit of stage news is more disturbing: Reports of George Lucas announcing plans for "Star Wars: A Musical Journey", or the plans to make a stage musical out of "Spider-Man". (answer: both).

~ Earlier, it was reported that British funnyman Ricky Gervaise was being mentioned as the next Oscar host. Nope: seems Ricky is a little too acerbic for the Academy's taste, so the job goes to...Hugh Jackman. Huh?

Stupid Remakes and Sequels

~ "Alvin & The Chipmunks: The Squeakuel". Waiter? A double-shot of Tums with an Alka-Seltzer chaser, please?

This week's new movie releases:

The Day the Earth Stood Still

Starring: the Robot also known as Keanu Reeves, Jennifer Connelly, Kathy Bates

Plot: Aliens land on Earth with an important message for its citizens. LISTEN TO AL GORE OR DIE!!!!

View Trailer

The BeerBuzz: Looks like it's time for me to take one for the team, and go see this film, despite all of these trepidations. This one is getting savaged by the critics, especially those critics who happened to have loved the original 1951 classic with Michael Rennie playing the part now played by Neo himself. The Original had the aliens ticked off about mankind's warmongering. This time they're upset about Global Warming.

Next time, I'm sure they'll be coming back to wipe us out because of the BCS forumula.

Nothing Like the Holidays

Starring: John Leguizamo, Freddy Rodriguez, Debra Messing

Plot: The scattered members of the Rodriguez family return to their parents' home in Chicago to celebrate the holiday season. Dramady ensues!

The BeerBuzz: This movie had limited release a couple of months ago, but then it was titled "Humbolt Park". I guess they figured that at this time of year, if you re-title anything with a holiday theme, you'll get a few suckers to watch it. I won't be one of them.

Delgo

Starring: the voiced of Freddie Prinze Jr., Val Kilmer, Anne Bancroft

Plot: A troubled teenager framed for a crime he didn't commit escapes from prison, leading him to band with an unlikely group of friends as they try to save two sparring races from a common enemy.

The BeerBuzz: So I see Anne Bancroft's name in the credits, and I'm wondering how that could be since Anne died in 2005. Turns out that this movie was made in 2003...shelved...and now redone with the old voice tracks and "more advanced" animation.

In any case, it still sucks.

New DVD Releases for Tuesday, December 16

Mamma Mia! - I saw this movie at the theater, forced to go upon the threat of living in the doghouse for a month. I was also threatened with two months in the doghouse if I were to write a review of it...my wife's punishment after what I did in my review to "Sex In the City";. But now that it's coming out on DVD, I will warn all of you men to stay far, far away from this.

There are few things that I could compare to Pierce Brosnan's rendition of that old ABBA classic "SOS";...having your crotch tazered would be one of them.

If you want more information about it, send an email to mitch@C-Town_Kennels.com

Mummy: Tomb of the Dragon Emperor - Another one of those films that the critics savaged, but it still made a boatload of money...and that's because it may have been stupid, but it was entertaining. Personally, I enjoy watching Brendan Fraser in these types of roles, as he is perfect in them...and I'll be adding this to the top of my Netflix queue.
