

Swerbs Blurbs columnist Mitch Cyrus keeps us up to date with the Hollywood rumor mill and previews two new movies, "The Break Up" and "The Omen". Mitch also gives us the rundown on the new DVD releases this weekend.

If the amount of jack that was spent on X-Men3 is any indication of the public's hunger for ANY decent blockbuster picture, then I expect huge figures later this month for "Superman Returns".

OK, I'll stop carping on X3 for awhile (maybe). For all the things I hated about it, at least it wasn't as lame as watching duds like M:I:III or RV.

News and Gossip:

~ Rumor has it that in Spider-Man 3, there will be FOUR villains to deal with. The three that are widely believed to be in it are Hobgoblin (since Harry found DaddyGoblin's secret room at the end of the last one), Venom, and Sandman. Thomas Hayden Church will play either Venom or Sandman...I've heard rumors about both parts, so who knows who he'll really be. The early rumor of the fourth villain would be Black Cat, with Chloe Sevigny (Big Love) in line for the role.

~ We should have seen this one coming. Universal Pictures will be making a movie "based on facts" (see below for my opinion on those) about the aftermath of Katrina, called “Hurricane Season”, about a high school football team’s struggles dealing with displaced students and rebuilding the community. No truth to the rumors that former FEMA Director Mike Brown will play the snide administrator role normally reserved for Anthony Heald.

~ We have a two-fer in today’s “WHY?” category. First; Willem Defoe has joined the cast of “Bean 2”. There were actual people that watched the first one? Amazing. Secondly, Morgan Freeman has agreed to star in a movie written and directed by Ben Affleck . I guess Ben must have pictures of Morgan in a garter belt from that wild wrap party after “Sum of All Fears”.

This week’s new releases:

Once again, only one new movie is being released nationwide this week. Are they trying to put me out of work? OK, then...since I don’t have another article until next Friday, I’ll include the one movie cutely being released on June 6th.

Title: The Break Up

Starring: Jennifer Anniston and Vince Vaughn

View Trailer

Plot: A couple splitting up both want to maintain possession of their expensive Chicago apartment, so they maintain living together although they “hate” each other. In other words; a remake of “War of the Roses” without the dark comedy chandelier ending.

The BeerBuzz: Perfect timing! I don't know about you, but Brad and Angelina are getting just about as sickening to me this year as Tom and Katie were last year. So to take our minds off from that, let's put up with hours of 'news' about Vince and Jennifer.

Please pass the barf bag.

But we really haven't seen that much on the E! Channels and their ilk, have we? No Jen and Vin on every friggin'
talk show on the planet...no special

appearances on lame news casts...not much of anything.

There is a reason for that. This movie is going to suck rotten eggs, and they know it. If your wife or girlfriend forces you to take her to this...you will have

ammo for make up sex
for the next six months.

Title: The Omen

Starring: Lieve
Schreiber, Julia
Stiles, Pete
Postlethwaite

View Trailer

Plot: A government official and his wife come to think that their adopted son may actually be the son of the devil. No truth to the rumor that this story was adapted from the life of my son.

The BeerBuzz: I thought the original was just a bit on the “oh, come ON, now!” campy side. But on the other hand...how many of us through the years have been tempted to check

the scalps of our
lovely children for
that “666” birthmark (or at least threatened
them with checking)? This one has some potential. The addition of “Rosemarie’s Baby’s Mama”, Mia Farrow, is a great touch.

Firewall – Harri son Ford's brow

furrows to depths that could swallow
Calista Flockhart as he
once again
fights bad guys

that are threatening to do bad things to his family. Mel Gibson was better in the same part when

the plot was just a little different
and the movie
was called “Ransom”.

Glory Road –
Josh Lucas
plays coach Don Haskins in another one of those “based on a true story”

stories...that uses real
people and
real events,
but change
facts around
whenever they feel like it. If that doesn't

bother you,
then this would
be a great flick
to rent. I
personally

don't like these types of
movies...unless they make it
about me and
Clive Owens
portrays me

and it shows
me scoring the winning
touchdown for the Browns in
the Super Bowl.

Underworld:
Evolution –
Who cares
about what this movie is about? Kate Beckinsale is

the hottest
vampire you'll ever see. Oh
yeah, and she fights a lot of repulsive
werewolves.

Running
